ST. LOUIS – The Sheldon Sessions series continues with acclaimed singer/songwriter Josh Ritter. The Beast In Its Tracks, Ritter’s latest album, was released on March 5 on Pytheas Recordings. Of the record, Ritter says, “In the year after my marriage ended, I realized that I had more new songs than I’d ever had at one time. Far from the grand, sweeping feel of the songs on So Runs the World Away, these new songs felt like rocks in the shoe, hard little nuggets of whatever they were, be it spite, remorse, or happiness.”

Following a sold-out spring 2013 tour, this upcoming acoustic tour presents Ritter’s songs stripped down, intimate, and close up.

Born in Johannesburg, South Africa, and now calling Colorado home, Gregory Alan Isakov is a lifelong traveler. With a degree in horticulture, Isakov balances the art of making and exhibiting his music with the art of gardening and connecting to the land. His new album is called The Weatherman.
