ST. LOUIS – Originally from Florence, Alabama—just outside of the legendary music mecca Muscle Shoals—Laura and Lydia Rogers, aka The Secret Sisters, embrace a myriad of styles on their new, critically acclaimed album, Put Your Needle Down. Produced by T Bone Burnett, their second full-length album marks a growth in maturity and subject matter for the duo, who contributed many original songs to this recording.

Since hitting the acoustic music scene four years ago, The Secret Sisters have impressed audiences and critics alike with their tight-harmonies and old-time mix of country, Americana, blues, folk and gospel. They have toured with She & Him and Ray LaMontagne, contributed to the soundtrack for The Hunger Games, and filmed a PBS special with Elvis Costello and Jakob Dylan, and along the way, penned an extensive catalog of original, new songs.
